

The anti-Kerry documentary scheduled to air right before the election is a clear misuse of the airwaves.

How are they able to use their stations to support any candidate? They use the airwaves free of charge and are obligated to serve the public. I believe this is a true example of the problems with media consolidation.

Airing this biased material is a clear misuse of Sinclair's broadcasting stations. I believe they should be stopped from airing this documentary and I am sure the cost of this production would be well beyond the legal limits of a contribution to the Bush campaign.
Thank you
